PENNSYLVANIA CONGRESSMEN.

The official returns received last night confirm our Congressional gains. Messrs. CAKE, in the Tenth, KOONTZ, in the Sixteenth, and COVODE, in the Twenty-first Districts are elected by handsome majorities. The Pennsylvania delegation in the Fortieth Congress will stand—Republicans, eighteen; Democrats, six.

TWENTY-FIRST DISTRICT.

The official majorities in this District elect Hon. John Covode, a member of the Fortieth Congress, by a majority of three hundred and fifty-eight. The following is the official vote:

Indiana, Covode's majority,	-	2,267.
Westmoreland, Weir's majority	1133.
Fayette, " "	776.
Covode's majority in District,		358.

NINETEENTH DISTRICT.—Later returns indicate the re-election of Hon. GLENNI W. SCOFIELD, to Congress from the Nineteenth District, by a majority of more than twenty-five hundred.

THE LEGISLATURE.—GEORGE W. GHEEHAN, Republican, and a member of the last Legislature, has been re-elected from the First District of Philadelphia, and not THOMAS L. SIMPSON, Democrat, as was published in our list yesterday.

The English Opera.

A more fashionable or elegant audience was probably never seen in our city than filled the Opera House last evening. It was the benefit of Miss. Caroline Richings, whose success throughout the season just closing, entitled her to this substantial testimony of appreciation. Not only was every seat in the lower part of the house filled, but all the standing room was occupied. To say the opera itself, "The Rose of Castile," proved as satisfactory as would have been "Maritana," or almost any one of the other operas that have given so much delight the present season, cannot be said. Nevertheless the house was liberal in its applause, and it cannot be denied that it was well deserved for the admirable manner the opera was performed throughout.

The season will close with a grand matinee this afternoon, when "The Daughter of the Regiment" will be played.

Financial Condition of Virginia.

The blandishments of power irrestibly drew the State of Virginia into the fatal vortex of secession, and among the ill effects which have resulted from it, not the least is her present financial condition. The total debt of the commonwealth is $40,040,718 87, and no provision has been made by law for the payment of any portion of it. Western Virginia has spurned her overtures for appointing Commissioners to apportion the debt between the two States, so that as things now stand, the whole of this debt rests upon Virginia alone, and its present revenue is scarcely sufficient to defray the ordinary expenses of the State government. An act was passed by the last Virginia legislature authorizing the funding of the interest due upon the State debt up to January 1, 1867. Under this act not $2,000,000 has yet been funded, and it is not probable that very much more will be funded until the act expires by limitation. Thus the total debt and interest thereon will have increased to $43,158,369 52. The property of the State available as a set-off against this debt consists principally in the bonds and stocks of her various internal improvement companies. In all the railroads and canals lying in the State, Virginia owns a moderate controling influence, and she has yet to solve the problem as to how she can make these assets serve to extinguish their value of the State debt. Virginia State stock is not worth forty cents on the dollar, and she requires nearly $4,000,000 to run the State next year. What is she to do? The simple truth is, Virginia has crushed herself, and the record of the past must, for generations to come, hang like a millstone about her neck to keep her down. This is not the vengeance of the North. There are no vicious elements in the loyal ranks to delight over the picture of Virginia's degradation. It is a sad, sad spectacle, and yet her people seem to cherish the idea that at some time in the future, they may sink her still lower in the great family of States, by renewing the futile attempt to establish a separate and distinct Government from the Federal Union, within our National domain.

Workingmen's Earnings in Great Britain.

We see it stated by Professor Levi, an English statistician of excellent reputation, that the aggregate annual earnings of the workingmen of Great Britain are about $2,090,500,000. The distribution of this sum, according to industries, is found to be about as follows:

England	$1,557,500,000
Scotland	212,500,000
Ireland	320,500,000
Total	$2,090,500,000

The average wages from 20 to 60 years of age for both sexes, details of which he gives in connection with each branch of industry, is stated as follows:

England	15s. 2d.
Scotland	14s. 10d.
Ireland	11s. 9d.

Prof. Levi adds:

"Frequently, however, there are more workers than one in a family. In a family of five, generally, two or even three persons are earning something. Assuming, then, that there are two earners in each family, and taking the average wages of men, women and children as a basis, the average income per family may be estimated at 32s 4d in England, 29s 6d in Scotland, and 23s 6d in Ireland."

If these estimates are correct, the average amount for the sustenance of an English workingman's family is equal to about eight dollars per week; in Ireland it is only fifty cents per week less. Contrast the wages of our American workingmen with these figures, and we have an explanation of the rapid tide of emigration ever flowing to this country.

"LADY TIPPLERS."—The Rev. Dr. S. Irenæus Prime, who is now in Paris, writes to Galignani an indignant denial of the charge made by a literary journal in this city, that American women are given to tippling. Prime says:

There are scores of ladies now in Paris, fairly representing the highest classes of society in New York, and who are perfectly familiar with the customs that prevail in the most genteel shops, stores, establishments, &c., to which ladies resort. All these ladies will unite in testifying that they never heard of such a thing as that "merchants always keep on hand a bottle of wine" for their lady customers; that "and late" establishments are "fashionable drinking houses," and that drinks are charged in the bill as "small trimmings," &c., &c. All this is pure fiction, a fancy sketch, and the entire column is drawn from the fertile imagination of some penny-a-liner, perhaps himself under the influence of that intoxication which he slanderously attributes to the women of New York.

The officers of the army who were to start for the Pacific coast and the frontier, Thursday, had their order countermanded, and it is not known now when they will start.

MEXICO.

Public Confidence not Restored.

Maximilian's Arrangement with the Church Party.

NEW YORK, October 12.—The Herald's City of Mexico correspondence, dated September 29th, says: Maximilian's new ministry was very active and industrious, but had done nothing to restore public confidence. The compact between the Emperor and the Church party is virtually to turn over the power into their hands, on the receipt of twenty-five million dollars, Maximilian to be merely an Executive. An order was issued on the 28th inst., to send 2,000 troops to move towards Durango and San Luis Potosi, in order to repossess the northern departments. The Church party have commenced operations by declaring that the abuses of the press should be suppressed.

Maximilian remarked in conversation that the hisses received by President Johnson on his tour, might be considered as good news for his empire.

Mr. Otterburg, the United States Consul, had left for New York on a leave of absence. A banquet was given him by the Americans in the city, at which the confederate exiles made speeches, expressing their strong love for the Union.

Marshal Bazaine has issued orders deferring the departure of the French troops for the present, and Maximilian was impressed with the idea that another revolution was imminent in the United States, which would secure him upon his throne.

New Mexico Indians Starving—An Outbreak Threatened.

NEW YORK, October 12.—The Herald's Washington special says: Intelligence from New Mexico indicates an outbreak among the Indians, which if not quelled at once, will lead to a very savage and devastating war, and an expenditure of many millions of dollars. It appears the Indians are in a starving condition, game having entirely disappeared from their country. They are compelled to kill the stock of settlers or starve to death. By doing this they come in collision with settlers. Already blood has been shed and an intensely bitter feeling on part of the Indians is manifested. If hostilities are fairly commenced, all the bands will be involved, and together they can muster between 4,000 and 5,000 warriors. Troops have been sent into the country, and several volunteer companies have been organized. Orders have been given to issue rations to the starving Indians, with the understanding that they will be stopped immediately upon the commission of any depredations.

Interesting from Panama.

NEW YORK, October 12.—Advices from Panama to the 3d, state that the new State President General Oriante had been inaugurated. Brig Shurwater, from Mexico, brings $100,000 for Europe. The people on the south coast are expecting the return of the Spanish invaders, but the republics were all quiet.

The United States steamer Lancaster sailed from Callao on September 10th, under command of Captain Rigsly. Commander Davenport was transferred to the Powhattan.

Considerable discoveries of opal have been made in Honduras. The tobacco crop is expected to be large, and the country generally is prospering. Owing to suspicious and troublesome foreigners settling in Honduras, the Government has passed very stringent laws concerning all strangers.

European Confederation Suggested—Designs on Russia and United States.

NEW YORK, October 12.—The Hibernian's mails contain the following items of foreign news: The Opinione Nationale of Paris, Prince Napoleon's organ, has an article urging the necessity of a confederation on the part of England, Austria, Prussia, Italy and Spain, so as to form a power capable of driving Russia back into Asia, and at the same time convincing the United States of the propriety of attending to the matter of colonizing a continent at home. Austria is sorely troubled in her foreign relation, the Russo-American alliance, the Candian revolution, the Mexican question and news from Mexico, with the news from Germany, all tending to the disquiet of her rulers and people.

STATE ITEMS.

A fireman named Vandevander was killed near McVeytown, on the Pennsylvania Railroad, Saturday night, by a locomotive being upset by striking a cow.

An old citizen of Sharpsburg, Blair county, named Thomas Kitz, was found drowned Wednesday night in Poplar Run, in six inches of water.

E. M. Pollock, a bookseller and councilman of Harrisburg, on being questioned as to his vote in Councils on the payment of the bill for the entertainment of President Johnson, replied: "After the payment of eighteen hundred dollars of money to Boyd for hauling Lincoln's stinking, rotten, filthy carcass through town from one railroad depot to the other, no one should object to the payment of this bill, which was right; and he would not have carried the carcass for $1,800." At least, David Mumma, Esq., states that was the tenor of Mr. Pollock's reply.

Col. John H. Duchman died at his residence, in North Lin street, Lancaster city, Pennsylvania, on Monday morning, after a protracted illness, in the seventy-first year of his age. The deceased was a soldier of the war of 1812, and also participated in the recent war of the rebellion, having been commissioned lieutenant colonel of the gallant 79th regiment Pennsylvania volunteers, and only leaving the service on account of failing health and physical inability to any longer undergo the hardships and exposure through which his comrades had to pass.

A match dog fight came off at Pioneer, on Friday last, for $100 a side, between D. C. Reed's "Watch," formerly owned in Watkins, Schuyler county, N. Y., and a Funkville dog named "Lion," formerly owned by Mike Burke, of Lockport. The fight lasted for forty-six and a half minutes, and resulted in favor of the black dog "Watch." There had been heavy betting among the spectators, there being over 1500 people present.

A morning contemporary of this city announces the suspension of the publication of the Meadville Republican, and charges it to an illiberal support of the Republican party. The Republican still lives, although Mr. White has not received that support which he has desired. The Republican is an independent daily, and therefore does not look to party for support but to the people.

THE NEXT CONGRESS.

Its Character Already Fixed.

The Boston Traveller, referring to the October elections, says:—"Complete returns from those States may, possibly, show that they have made some small gains there, but in the best case for them the change will fall far short of the requirements of their position. Supposing them to have gained two or three members, to what States can they look for the other twenty-three or twenty-four members they must gain, or confess themselves vanquished in a fair, constitutional contest? Can they gain any in Massachusetts, New Hampshire, and Rhode Island? Not one. Can they gain any in Connecticut? Possibly one, but probably not one. In New York? Possibly one or two, but probably not one. In New Jersey? Not one. They are more likely to lose than to gain among the Jersey Blues. In Illinois? Not one. In Wisconsin? Not one. In Michigan, or Minnesota, or Nevada? Not one. At the utmost, the Johnsonian vote in the House of Representatives cannot be raised beyond about fifty-eight, and to that number only through resort to violence in the Border States. Our weak point now is those States, just as it was during the war. There the Johnsonians, by illegal proceedings, may secure several new members, and swell their number up to fifty eight Representatives in the next House of Representatives. Against that small force there would be one hundred and thirty-three Union men, a body strong enough to keep matters right, backed as it would be by a popular majority of not less than half a million. Thanks to what was done in New England in September, and to what was done yesterday in Pennsylvania and the Northwest, all danger to the country may be considered at an end—all danger, we mean, from irregular action. For it is not within the bounds of possibility that the President could do anything in the face of opposition such as would have daunted even Andrew Jackson. Mr. Johnson is a very obstinate man, and is very fond of having his own way; but he is not a fool, even though he has done some very foolish things—and he will never attempt to drive his pickaxe where it never can be made to go. Yesterday's verdicts will influence all his to-morrows, and influence them for good. They will lead to a great increase of the popular majority in the elections which remain to be decided; and by the time that all those elections shall have been held, even the President himself will be forced to understand that the conquest of the American people which he threatened to undertake, is no light task. And then the character of the opposition to him is such that ought to make him reflect seriously on what is before him,—and probably it will cause him thus to reflect. He may be able to despise New England, but can he afford to despise Pennsylvania? Can he look with contempt on Ohio? Is Indiana a State to be disregarded? Is fast growing Iowa a powerless community? The East may be nothing in Presidential eyes, but those eyes cannot shut themselves to the light that proceeds from the West, where is the moral day-spring, as the natural day-spring is in the East. Mr. Johnson must defer to the point aimed at by 'the course of Empire.'"

LIFE ON THE PLAINS.

Interesting Reminiscences of Kit Carson.

A correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial has had an interview with Kit Carson, who communicated to him the following interesting reminiscences:

All the Indians, hunters and trappers ride with short stirrups. I am almost bow-legged from it. It is more important to the Indian than the white man, as it is only by aid of the stirrup that he can shift his position, hanging down on one side, so as to conceal all his body but his leg. His leg is all you have to fire at, as he throws himself on the side, buttocks, or around the neck of the horse. On this account, also, they hang the stirrups well forward.

Some one referred to Carson's intimate knowledge of Indian strategy. "Why, yes, I am up to a good many of their tricks, but they fooled me once—they fooled me pretty bad that time. I'll tell you about it. It was in—let me see—yes, 1835. There were six of us hunters out after buffalo, up in the Snake country. We had made a pretty good hunt, and came into camp at night, intending to start in next morning with our hunt. Well, we camped. Had a good many dogs with us, some of them good dogs. They had barked a good deal, and we heard wolves. As I lay by the fire, I saw one or two big wolves sneaking about camp—one of them quite in it. Gordon wanted to fire, but I would not let him, for fear of hitting some of the dogs.

"I had just a little suspicion that the wolves might be Indians, but when I saw them turn short round, and heard the snap of their teeth when the dogs came too close to one of 'em, I felt easy then, and made sure it was a wolf. The Indian fooled me that time. Confound the rascal,' becoming animated, 'confound the rascal, do you think he didn't have two old buffalo bones in his hand that he cracked together every time that he turned to snap at the dogs? Well, by and by, we dozed off to sleep, and it wasn't long before I was awoke by a crash and a blaze. I jumped straight for the mules and held 'em. If the Indians had been smart, they'd a had us all, but they run as soon as they fired. They killed but one of us—poor Davis. He had five bullets in his body, and eight in his buffalo robe. The Indians were a band of Sioux, on the war path after the Snakes, and came on us by accident. They tried to waylay us next morning, but we killed three of 'em including their chief.

"When I first went over into California in 1829, the valleys were full of Indian tribes. Indians were thick everywhere, and I saw a great deal of some large and flourishing tribes. When I was there again in 1859 they had all disappeared, and when I inquired about certain tribes I had seen on the spot, was told by the people living there that they had never heard of them."

Choice Recipes.

Squash Pudding—Take a marrow squash weighing about four pounds; peel it and cut it into pieces about an inch square; put them into a saucepan with a very little water, and let it stew gently three or four hours. Be careful to keep some water with it to prevent its burning. When it is very soft, rub it through a sieve, and add a little salt; beat up six eggs with a pound of sugar, and a spoonful of mace or cinnamon; warm a quarter of a pound of butter, so that it will stir in; add a quart of good milk or cream, and bake it in deep plates lined with paste, and thick rim. Cut a rim of paper to put over the crust to prevent its burning. Bake it half an hour.

Cocoanut Pudding—Break the cocoanut and save the milk; peel off the brown skin and grate the cocoanut very fine. Take the same weight of cocoanut, fine, with sugar and butter; rub the butter and sugar to a cream, and add five eggs, well beaten, one cup of cream, the milk of the cocoanut, and a little grated lemon. Line a dish with a rich paste; put in the pudding, and bake it one hour. Cover the rim with paper, if necessary.

Lemon Pudding.—Beat eight eggs very well; add eight ounces of white sugar, the rind of two lemons being rubbed with some lumps of sugar to take out the essence, then peel and beat them in a mortar, with the juice of the lemon, and mix all with six ounces of butter warmed; line the dish with a rich paste crust; turn the pudding in and bake it about an hour.

Pineapple Pudding.—Peel the pineapple, taking care to get all the specks out, and grate it; take its weight in sugar, and half its weight in butter; rub these to a cream, and stir them into the apple; then add five eggs and a cup of cream. It may be baked with or without the paste crust.

Curry Chicken.—Cut the chicken in good shaped pieces; put them into a saucepan with a few little pieces of salt pork, an onion, and a little salt. Put in cold water enough to cover it; let it simmer over the fire until the chicken is very tender, and the water has simmered almost away; then mix a tablespoonful of curry in a little water; stir this with the gravy, and let it stew with the chicken ten minutes. Have ready some rice boiled and formed in cups. Dish the chicken; take out the onion; turn the gravy over the chicken, and lay the rice around the dish.

Bouilli Beef—Put a part of a brisket of beef, weighing six pounds, into a saucepan, and cold water enough to cover it; let it boil until the scum rises, and skim it nicely; add two carrots, two turnips, and one onion cut in dice form; stick an onion full of cloves; let all this simmer three hours; add one tumbler of red wine, two table spoonsful of mixed mustard and a table spoonful of soy; let it simmer an hour. When done, sprinkle over it some pickled cucumbers, cut very fine; stir a little flour into your gravy, give it one boil, turn into the dish with the meat, and send it to the table very hot.

A Beef Pie—Take cold roast beef, or steak; cut it into thin slices, and put a layer into a pie dish; shake in a little flour, pepper and salt; cut up a tomato (if you have it,) or onion chopped very fine; then another layer of beef and seasoning, and so on until the dish is filled. If you have any beef gravy, put it in; if not, a little beef drippings, and water enough to make sufficient gravy. Have ready a dozen potatoes, well boiled and smashed, half a cup of milk or cream, and a little butter and salt; spread it over the pie as a crust, an inch thick; brush it over with egg, and bake about twenty-five minutes.

Batter for Fritters.—Take half a pound of flour, one ounce of butter, which melt, the whites of three eggs well beaten, half a glass of beer, and enough water to make a thick batter.

Hurricane in Indiana.

A dispatch dated Franklin, Indiana, October 10, 1866, says: Our city yesterday afternoon, between four and five o'clock, was visited by one of the most violent and destructive whirlwinds ever known in this section. It was a strange sight indeed, having a circle for its base some two hundred yards in diameter, and terminating in a vortex, resembling a sugar loaf. No peculiar sign was given to foretell its commencing—simply a frightful sound "as of a rushing mighty wind," and in its maddened fury burst upon us.

Within the corporate limits of our city, some eight or ten persons were injured. In only one case, as yet, the result has been fatal; but fears for others are entertained.

The destruction of property of itself will tell of its severity. Solid brick buildings, immediately in the destructive path, were left with raked, half sustaining walls, while less substantial buildings were twisted off their foundation, or dashed in pieces by the flying debris that filled the air.

It is impossible to give the amount of damages correctly; however, various estimates placed it at from forty to sixty thousand dollars. Our depot, just refitted, will cost three thousand dollars to make it whole—which is simply to build a new one.

A workman exhibition has lately been opened in London, and the most curious fact connected with it is that the greater portion of exhibitors have invented or improved on some object which is in no way connected with their trade or profession; for example, a butcher has exhibited a decimal calculation on a new principle; a short hand writer has sent a machine by which crusts of bread can be turned into flour; a house painter has discovered a method of perfecting teapots and hats; whilst an office clerk has invented a new system of making up entry.

It is asserted that several manuscripts written in the ancient Mexican language, that of the Aztecs, have been lately discovered in Mexico by Messrs. Stoddart, Livingstone, Sir A. Arbuthnot and De Heredia, who intend to publish them. Several of these manuscripts are of the 17th century, and will in all probability throw new light on the history of the institutions and customs of the inhabitants of the Empire Ancient of Montezuma.

OFFICIAL RETURNS OF THE COUNTY.

Meeting of the Return Judges.

The Return Judges of the various Election Districts of the county met yesterday morning, in the District Court Room, for the purpose of computing the votes polled at the general election on Tuesday, when, on motion of Hon. A. C. ALEXANDER, of Allegheny, the Board was organized by appointing Capt. HUGH S. FLEMING, Chairman, and Messrs. D. C. HULZE and THOMAS HUNTER, Secretaries.

The votes of the various districts were then opened by the Chairman, and recorded by the Secretaries, as follows:

Governor, Congressman and Sheriff.

The Fate of Saxony.

A letter in the London Times says: After many negotiations it appears likely that Saxony will not be swallowed whole, and that the prey having had its bones well broken and its body covered with diplomatic saliva will be only half absorbed so that some part of it may for the time escape digestion. M. Von Bismarck has abandoned his original intentions of treating Saxony as a conquered country. The King may go back to his capital. Dresden is not to be occupied by the Prussians. The forts they erected and are working on are not to be occupied by the troops of the Protectorate. But Saxony is to acknowledge the military leadership or lordship of Prussia. Her army is to be enlarged, reorganized and Prussianized. Its chief, the Crown Prince, is to take an oath, not of allegiance, but of submission, and of acknowledgement of duties to be performed to the King of Prussia. Konigstein is to become a fortress of the Northern Bund, and is to receive a mixed garrison of Saxons and Prussians. The army is be increased. The annual charge for the army of Saxony used to be about 2,300,000 thalers. It will now be 4,500,000 thalers, and the strength will be raised from 28,000 to 40,000 men, who, in case of war, must serve under the orders of Prussia, though officered by Saxons as before. The artillery is to consist of ninety-six guns instead of fifty-eight. The system of regiments is to be introduced, and until these changes be effected the Prussians will occupy three towns in Saxony, but will evacuate Dresden.

THE Philadelphia Ledger, in a statement regarding the canard which appeared in that sheet on Wednesday, says that it was published as received from an experienced, well informed and usually careful correspondent, who was deceived, and adds: "While we sincerely regret that an error on so important a subject has found its way into the Ledger, even in our correspondence, we are glad to be able to record the fact that the President has not raised so serious a question, for no sound lawyer can doubt the entire legality of the existing Congress."

A WOMAN, about twenty-four years of age, appeared at a station house in Washington, on Saturday evening, and gave her name as Jenny Lockwood, recently a private soldier in Company B, Second Michigan Infantry. She said that her home was in Flint, Michigan, and that she was now sick and without a home. A permit was procured from Major B. B. French, and she was taken to Providence Hospital.

THE Belfast (Maine) Journal, mentions, as an astonishing effect of a camp-meeting upon the conscience of a thief, that an umbrella stolen three years before, was, during the session of the camp-meeting, returned, with evidences of sincere penitence, to its owner.

The Herald's Havana correspondent says there were a few cases of yellow fever in the city, but that the small-pox had reappeared. Revolts among the Chinese Coolies were very frequent, and on the 20th ult., a foreman of a factory was killed by the workmen. Quarantine regulations remain unchanged.

The New York Tribune's Syracuse special, of Monday evening, says:—The Unitarians to-day considered and adopted propositions for a more perfect organization of their society. In the afternoon the question of how to procure a great supply of ministers was taken up and discussed, and during the proceedings the sum of thirty thousand dollars was pledged for the use of the Meadville Theological School. There were votes of respect for the Cambridge Theological School and its Professors, recommending to the churches to raise for denominational purposes, annually, the sum of one hundred thousand dollars; approving and promising co-operation in the temperance movement, and extending fraternity to the Universalists. The meeting to-day was very large and enthusiastic. The Conference adjourned till 1868.

Gonzales and Pellicier were executed shortly after ten o'clock yesterday in Raymond street jail, Brooklyn, within a few blocks of the scene of the murder of Senor Otero. They made a full confession of their participation in the deed, and charged Viele with being the planner and chief assassin. Neither of them manifested much emotion on the gallows. Gonzales seemed a little frightened, but Pellicier was calm and composed. Their necks were not broken by the fall, but death was very quick. There was no struggle on Gonzales' part, but Pellicier's contortions were terrible for some minutes.

A New York Herald Toronto dispatch says: All apprehension of Fenian raids has been dispelled in the minds of the Canadians, and the Home Government has been notified that no more troops are needed. The Toronto city authorities state that the English Government intends demanding a suppression of the Fenian organization by the Administration, or they threaten to aid the copperheads in dividing the Union with a few Armstrong guns.

On Friday morning last the dead body of Mr. George Kosensteel, who resided near Gettysburg, was found in one of the lime kilns of Guinn & Riley, near the depot. The Sentinel says he had been at the Democratic meeting the day and evening before. How he got where he was found is not known—whether to warm himself, as the night was chilly, and suffocated by the gas, or was killed and thrown there, is not known. The Coroner's jury, however, returned a verdict of accidental death.

The Storm.

The terrible storm visiting this section has now continued for over forty-eight hours, and with an increasing destruction of property in the city and surrounding country. Bridges have been swept away and streets upheaved by bursting sewers, while houses on the creek and river banks have been carried off. Railroad communication with the South is suspended, and trains to the North and West are irregular. The town of Bladensburg, five miles from Washington, is wholly submerged, and has been abandoned by the inhabitants. The Chesapeake and Ohio canal has overflown, involving the loss of considerable property, and the dams of the large flouring mills near Georgetown have been lost. Corn and potato crops have been almost wholly destroyed. The Potomac is now rising rapidly, and fears are entertained for the bridges which cross it at this point.

The Result of Elections in the South.

Full files of Southern papers have been received here, containing comments on the recent elections. Most of them declare that the result was what they anticipated. None of the Virginia, South Carolina or Georgia papers advocate the adoption of the Constitutional Amendment. One or two in North Carolina favor it. Most of their journals declare that if the amendment is ratified the South has no guarantee of representation in Congress.

Lengthy Cabinet Meeting.

The most protracted Cabinet meeting held since the President's return, took place to-day, every member being present, including Secretary Seward. All visitors were excluded from the White House to-day.

Cavalry Bureau Abolished.

In the reorganization of the regular army, Gen. Grant has found that the cavalry bureau attached to the War Department was of no use, and it has been abolished. It was merely established by general orders, and was not specially authorized by law. General Pleasanton was at its head.

Rebel Generals.

Reporter Drowned.

W. G. Parkhurst, an old congressional phonographic reporter and very prominent mason, was accidentally drowned here to-day.

Gold Receipts.

The gold receipts from customs from the principal Atlantic ports last week were nearly four million dollars. The importations are very large just now.

Receipts and Expenses.

The receipts over expenses for last the fiscal year exceed thirty-seven millions of dollars, as will be shown in the Secretary of the Treasury's annual report.

Assessor Appointed.

James W. Eldridge was to-day appointed Assessor of Revenue in the Ninth Indiana District.

Public Land Sales.

Returns from Winnebago, Minnesota, Land Office, show that five thousand acres of public lands were disposed of in September.

The Philadelphia Canard.

All of the Washington journals call to-day for the punishment of the author of the Philadelphia canard. It is fully proven that it was never sent from this city.

WASHINGTON, October 10.

Correspondence for Switzerland forwarded in the mail to Belgium by direct steamer to Antwerp, will be subject to the following rates of postage, the same being in full to destination: On letters, eighteen cents, per single rate of half-ounce, prepayment optional; on newspapers, gazettes and periodicals, 4c for each weight of three ounces or a fraction thereof, prepayment required; on books, pamphlets and other printed matter, 13c for each ounce or fraction of an ounce, prepayment required.

NAVAL ORDERS FROM DENMARK.

The State Department has received the notice to mariners issued by the Navy Department of Denmark, on the 10th of September, and which is as follows: That the light vessels at Sasor Prindeon, at Kolbern Runden, and at Anholt Knob, which have been withdrawn from their stations from the 21st December, to the 21st March, will hereafter, as well as the light vessels in Droggden, Lazor End, be kept at their stations all the year round, as long as the ice will permit; and further, that said light vessels when forced by the ice to leave their stations, will be replaced as soon as circumstances allow.

REDEMPTION OF MUTILATED CURRENCY.

It has been decided by the Acting Comptroller of the Currency, that mutilated currency must be redeemed by the redemption agencies of the National Banks at the commercial centres, so long as no reasonable doubt exists as to the identity of the notes presented. When the notes are so badly mutilated as to make the value or identity difficult to determine, the case should be referred to the bank by which they were issued.

APPOINTMENTS.

The following appointment of revenue officers were made to-day: James W. Eldridge, Assessor of Ninth District. Postmasters—Wm. S. Cook, Paris, Illinois; James G. Hatchett, Frankfort, Kentucky; J. J. Thomas, Newport, Kentucky; William A. Trower, Shelbyville, Illinois.

SMUGGLING.

The Treasury Department has been informed that smuggling operations of an extensive character have recently been carried on from Matamoras to Brownsville. The withdrawal of troops from Brownsville has given the smugglers an opportunity to effect their unlawful purposes, which they have been prompt to seize. Measures have been taken to prevent these transactions.

Such is the activity of smugglers at the various points on the frontier, that the exercise of the greatest vigilance is required from revenue officers in the performance of their duties.

THE STORM.

The rain storm which commenced on Wednesday has continued without the slightest intermission up to the present time, causing a wide-spread destruction of property in the city and vicinity. The water in the East branch is over the floors of the bridge, and large quantities of drift wood are piled up against the long bridge over the Potomac. Many bridges, fences, huts and crops on the banks of the rivers and creeks have been swept away, together with other property. Various families living on the low grounds are suffering much in consequence of the partial submerging of their tenements.

The United States and the Eastern Question.

NEW YORK, October 12.—The following extract from the Vienna Press will explain what is thought of the American-Russian alliance. The Press says: A correspondent writes to some German papers that the cabinet of the Tuileries is doing all in its power to prevent the American Republic from obtaining a foot-hold in the Mediterranean by the purchase of an island of the Grecian Archipelago. It is necessary for France to prevent the United States, who strikingly hindered Napoleon from meddling in trans-Atlantic affairs, from themselves meddling in the Oriental question. In this matter English interests agree with those of France. It is for this reason, it is said, that England offered to lend financial aid to the Sultan, on condition of his resisting the brilliant offer made by the cabinet of Washington, for the cession of a part of the Island of Milos, but Russian interests are diametrically opposite to those of the Eastern powers. It is necessary and sound policy on her part to form of the United States an interested ally in the question which is about to come up in the East. It is well known in St. Petersburgh that the American Republic, if it succeeds in obtaining a firm hold on some part of the Mediterranean, has no intention of taking any share of the spoils in the event of Turkey being divided. Her intentions are to prevent France from acquiring any benefit now or in the future from the catastrophies that might follow the breaking up of the Turkish Government and country, and as far as England is concerned, to act in such a manner that her power in the Indies will be broken. These are also the two objects which Russia has in view.

Robbery at Bowling Green, Ky.

BOWLING GREEN, October 12.—A gang of six men robbed the railroad offices and stores of South Union at six P. M., taking about $1,300, $300 of it in specie; also a large amount of dry goods. Three men had their faces blacked. The description of three others very nearly answers that of men who robbed the pay train yesterday. They left in the direction of Franklin.

The storm has abated but little, and destruction of property continues. The railroad trains are running.

THE STREET COMMISSIONER.

There is a rumor in town to the effect that Street Commissioner Cornell and Mr. Tweed have been suspended from office by the Governor, to await the result of the charges made against them by the Citizens' Association. It is also stated that Mr. Nelson J. Waterbury has been requested to take charge of the duties of the office.

THE REBEL COTTON LOAN.

The following note calling attention to the value of the Confederate cotton loan is sent to the editor of the London News, dated September 28th: "On the part of the Committee I beg leave to say that they have the greatest confidence in the rebel promises to pay, provided they were permitted to do so, and they base their confidence not only on the information they receive from the South, but likewise on the testimony given by General Robert E. Lee, before the Reconstruction Committee, appointed by Congress. I trust, sir, Your sense of justice and fair play will induce you to publish this testimony. I may further add that no such political blunder was ever committed by any statesmen who had the restoration of the Union at heart, as compelling the South to repudiate their debt, and especially this paltry foreign debt of £21,400,000, for which cotton was hypothecated. The result has been to retard the return of prosperity to the South, and to annihilate their credit in Europe. They required and still require money for the cultivation of their estates, to enable them to grow more cotton, tobacco, sugar, and repair their railways. They offered any terms, but that fatal word repudiation, although on them has been the stumbling block to their obtaining a shilling. The Committee believe that this fatal word, so far as the cotton loan is concerned, is destined shortly to be blotted out, and then the money markets of Europe will be again open for the promotion of Southern enterprise and a renewed era of prosperity will dawn.

"On behalf of the Committee.

(Signed,) "WILLIAM MORGAN."

THE TIMES ON THE ELECTIONS.

The Times says the results of the late elections show very clearly that the contest has been almost precisely as it was two years ago between the Democratic and the Union parties. The differences between Congress and the President have had no perceptible influence upon the party divisions of the past four or five years, nor has the Philadelphia Convention, strong as was the impression which it made at the outset upon the public mind, produced any marked effect upon political organizations in the several States where elections have been held.

The Storm at Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, October 12.—The loss of the small bridge at Ilchester will not delay regular freight or passenger trains to-morrow. The storm has been confined to the vicinity of Baltimore. There is no rise in the Potomac.

BALTIMORE, October 12.—Among the establishments that have suffered by the storm and flood are the following: Gray's factory, the Union factory, the Thistle and Granite factories at Ellicott mills. The dams are all destroyed or greatly injured. The dam of the Avalon and Iron works near the Relay House, on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad is broken, and the buildings are flooded and damaged.

All accounts received from the Upper Patapsco shows the damage by the storm was much greater than was reported yesterday. The large dam of the Union Manufacturing Co., with part of its mill, stabling and houses, together with the bridge connecting the works with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, were swept away. The dam of the Granite Factory at Ellicott's and much other property at that point, in addition to that before mentioned, has been destroyed. Many houses and much property in the Patapsco valley are seriously damaged. There are reports of several lives being lost. Two persons are believed to have been drowned at Ellicott's Mills. Repairs to the Baltimore and Ohio railroad are actively progressing. The trestling at Illchester is nearly completed, and trains will soon pass as usual. On the Washington branch trains are running with very slight delay. Some pontoons of the track have been submerged, but no damage of moment has resulted.

Laclede Races.

ST. LOUIS, October 12.—To-day has been a very exciting day on the Laclede Course. His competitors were Bushwhacker, John Scott, Prairie Boy and Blue Flag. The second race, two mile heats, free for all, premium one thousand dollars, was won by Muggins, time, 3:41, 3:42½. His competitors were Stonewall Jackson, Derby, Ringmaster and Cooper. The third race, three mile heats, free for all, premium two thousand dollars, was won by Harry of the West; time, 5:55½, 5:56. This was the best and most exciting race of the week. The time of the first heat is said to be remarkable.

Presentation of a Watch and Chain.

Thomas J. May, Esq., having resigned his position as Freight Agent of the Cleveland and Pittsburgh Railroad Company, on account of ill health, was made the recipient, on Thursday evening, of a splendid gold watch and chain, presented to him by the employees of the company, as a testimonial of the high and well merited esteem they hold for him as a gentleman and as a valuable and respected officer of the corporation. A meeting of the employees was held at the office on Penn street, Mr. Henry Wickman being called to the chair, when Wm. Stewart, Esq., General Freight Agent, made a neat and appropriate presentation speech, expressing the deepest sympathies and regrets of Mr. May's many friends that the afflicting hand of Providence had necessitated his resignation, and extending the best wishes of all for his future health and prosperity. Mr. May responded in a few becoming remarks, tendering to the donors his thanks, and expressing his grateful feelings. The watch is of the Beasley manufacture, and bears the donors' inscription neatly engraved, and was purchased at the jewelry establishment of Wm. Stevenson, No. 320 Liberty street. The ceremonies wound up with an excellent oyster supper.

AT THE TOMB OF LINCOLN.

Visit of the Southern Loyalists—Solemn and Impressive Ceremonies—The Legends of the Occasion—The Decorations of the Tomb—The Oath of the Loyalists—Prayer by Rev. Dr. Newman, of the Loyalists—An Immense Assembly of the People—Reception of the Loyalists at Monticello, and Cheers by the Seminary Girls—Mass Meeting and Speeches To-Day.

Special Dispatch to the Chicago Republican.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., October 10.

At Monticello, to-day, one hundred and twenty young ladies, students of the Monticello Seminary, with their teachers, met the Southern Loyalists at the depot. A short address of welcome was made by the Treasurer of the institution, L. McClellan, Esq., and responded to by Gov. Hahn, Gov. Hamilton and Hon. George Griffin. Gov. Hahn earnestly exhorted the fair ones to permit no traitors to pay them addresses, for men false to their country would be false to their wives. The ladies showered the Southerners with bouquets, and gave three splendid cheers when the train started. It sounded like a chorus of nightingales.

On reaching Carlinville, the train was met by a special train from Springfield, bearing the Springfield Reception Committee, with banners and music. The delegation consisted of about fifty of the citizens of Springfield, among whom were Hon. Jesse K. Dubois, Hon. James H. Beveridge, Hon. O. H. Miner, and others.

The booming of cannon announced the arrival of the train at Springfield. An immense assemblage crowded around the depot and filled the avenues. The Southern Loyalists were immediately escorted to carriages, and, preceded by a band and a squadron of cavalry, in uniform, took their way toward Oak Ridge.

The procession was a very large one, and like an immense funeral, slowly wound its way toward the tomb of the martyr. Within the cemetery, a short distance from the entrance, and on the left of the road, was stretched a large placard, on which was inscribed the following words: "The murdered President—can a political party prosper under God, the fruits of whose counsels ripened in this deed? Peace Democrats, this is your only contribution to the history of an age otherwise unparalleled in glory!"

A few yards further on the right was another with the words: "In memoriam. Let us this day resolve that the dead shall not have died in vain; that the nation shall, under God, have a new birth of freedom, and that a government by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth!"

The cortege halted at the foot of the hill, upon which stands the shrine of every loyal American heart. Clustering around the summit and on the extending sides were thousands of people, all as silent as the grave. The sunlight shone through the crimson and scarlet foliage, lighting up the tomb with golden radiance. On the brow of the hill a brilliant group of devoted women with busy fingers had woven wreaths of dying leaves and autumn flowers to decorate the last resting place of the loved President, and there they stood, with tearful eyes, awaiting the appearance of those who, like him, had suffered all but the last extremity for their country, and who had come to pay tribute to his memory and weep at his shrine. The decorations were plain, like the character of the illustrious martyr, but touching and suggestive. Extending over the top of the tomb, and hanging gracefully over the door, were festoons of leaves of oak and maple, brilliant with the colors of autumn, and large wreaths of flowers with crosses of immortelles and dahlias hung over the door. On each side of the tomb were large rustic vases filled with beautiful flowers. Immediately over the door was inscribed the words: "Abraham Lincoln. Let his name be spoken but in reverence; for, although he is dead, his great deeds live after him, and the lowly shall not hope in vain."

The procession, with the flag at its head, marched slowly up the ascent and formed in double lines near the door, leaving a space in the center, where, near the door of the tomb, stood Colonel C. T. Branscombe, of Missouri, and Rev. Dr. Newman, of New Orleans. A feeling of the deepest solemnity seemed to pervade the vast assemblage, and many eyes unused to weep were filled with tears, although no word had yet been spoken.

Colonel Branscombe then slowly read the following oath of consecration:

"Standing at the tomb of the illustrious dead, recalling his sublime words, his heroic virtue, his unswerving fidelity to the great trusts committed to him by the American people, we here make a new consecration of our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor, to the service of our country, and, with uncovered heads and uplifted hands, solemnly resolve, with the help of Almighty God, that we will never surrender the contest with despotic power, until the fell spirit of rebellion shall be utterly crushed, until the right of free speech shall be maintained on every inch of American soil, and all men are established in the full possession of those inalienable rights which God has given, and to secure and protect which is the object of all good governments."

At the words, "with uncovered heads and uplifted hands," the Loyalists removed their hats and raised their right hands. The entire audience then kneeled, and Dr. Newman gave utterance to this deeply impressive prayer:

Supreme God, Almighty Creator, Sovereign Judge of men and nations, Thy ways are laid in righteousness, Thy laws are wise and good, Thy benefactions are above the deserts of men. In this hour of national peril we bow before Thy throne to offer Thee our thanks, to present our petitions, to confess our obligations to Thy goodness, and acknowledge our dependence upon Thy bounty. Infinite though Thou art, and high and exalted above all Thy creatures, yet behold us in compassion.

Here, at the tomb of departed greatness, at the shrine of a nation's affections, amid the solemnities of the hour and the hallowed memories of the place, we lift our grateful hearts to Thee for our national existence, prosperity and renown. Thou hast not dealt so with any nation. Thou hast made us a people who were not a people, and hast crowned us with glory and honor. We remember thy goodness to our fathers. Thou wast their strength in war—in peace their wisdom. Under Thy benignant smile we have increased in numbers and riches, in virtue and knowledge, in power and glory. Thou hast given us the treasures of the deep, the fatness of the earth, and the cattle on a thousand hills. Thou hast made our merchants princes, our artisans skillful, our yeomanry noble, our scholars learned in all useful knowledge, our statesmen wise, our warriors brave and victorious. Thou hast given us schools of learning, halls of justice, houses of mercy, temples of piety, and Christian pastors to lead us in the paths of righteousness for Thy name's sake. Thou hast poured out the spirit of grace upon our land, and raised up unto Thyself a people whose God is the Lord, who trust in Thy Son for redemption, who keep Thy commandments, who were benefactors to mankind in the hour of our nation's greatest need. When treason sat in high places, when armed rebellion sought to destroy our Government, Thou who wert the defender of our fathers wert the deliverer of their sons. Thou didst awaken a love of country which dangers did not estrange nor trials overcome. Many a time didst Thou interpose in our behalf to turn defeat into victory, and make the madness of our enemies contribute to our cause. For our sakes Thou didst check the violence of men, and for Thine own glory Thou didst crown our armies with victory, and hast brought peace to our land.

Where shall we begin Thy praise, Lord God Almighty, for Thine infinite goodness to our native land? And now especially do we praise Thee, O Most High, for the birth, the life, the character, the election and administration of Thy faithful servant, whose mortal remains lie embalmed before us. We bless Thee for his strong, clear, comprehensive mind; for the simplicity, purity and beauty of his character; for his marvellous common sense, prudence and firmness; for his honesty, which bribes could not tempt, nor power corrupt; for his patriotism which party could not pervert nor ambition destroy; for his fidelity to the Constitution he had sworn to support; for his fortitude in distress, his patience and meekness under the complaints of friends and the calumnies of enemies; his steadfastness in adversity, and humility when crowned with glory; for his wondrous love of justice, freedom, and humanity; for his undying faith in Thee, and in Thy timely support. And here, where his dust is urned and where at his feet the chains of slavery he buried, we offer Thee, O God, a nation's gratitude for the Proclamation of Emancipation, and, in behalf of 4,000,000 of freedmen, we thank the Almighty Father for the wisdom, justice, and courage which Thou didst give Thy servant to break the bonds of our country, men so long oppressed; Thou heardst his solemn vow to set the captive free when victory should come; and we bless Thee, Father in Heaven, that Thy servant redeemed his vow, and that Thou didst permit him to live to witness the suppression of armed rebellion and the emancipation of Thine enslaved children. But, Merciful God, we deplore his untimely death and the malignant spirit which prompted his assassination; yet we deserved this great chastisement, and confess the righteousness of Thy judgment, because of our pride and vanity. We did not appropriately esteem him as Thy chosen instrument, or delight in the virtues which we now so much admire.

Great God, forgive our blindness and ingratitude, and raise up unto Thy people such rulers as Thou shalt delight to honor and we can love. Oh, Father of Mercies, have in Thy kind care and keeping Thine hand-maiden and his sons, who were thus so suddenly and cruelly bereft of a husband and father. May she find consolation in Thee, and they grow up to honor and usefulness in the land he so dearly loved. And do Thou remember the widows and orphans of those who fell in their country's defense, and all such who mourn the death of sons and brothers in battle, and of the slain among the brave defenders of our land of the army and navy. We invoke Thy benediction especially upon those who bear the scars and mutilations received in defending the right.

From Thy benignant throne, Supreme Ruler of the Universe, hear us now for our common country; pity our intestine broils; forgive the fierceness of party strife, and pour the spirit of love and harmony on all the land. Deliver our President from the errors into which he has fallen, and save the nation from the ruinous results of his misguided policy. May he become a wise, temperate, virtuous, gentle, patriotic ruler, whose administration shall rest in truth, justice and mercy. May he fear Thee, and heed the voice of the people, who are higher than he. May he mingle justice with mercy in the punishment of treason; may he be the honest and trustful guardian of those whom his predecessor rescued from bondage; may he separate himself from the bad men whose wicked counsels have brought us to the brink of ruin; and may he return to his first love, and to the support of those principles from which he has departed. Restrain him from desperate measures in the day of his disappointment, that he may not plunge the land again into civil war; but may he quietly submit to the will of the people, whose servant he is. Accept our hearty thanks, great God, for the wisdom, courage and steadfastness which Thou hast vouchsafed to our National Congress, to resist usurpation in high places; to maintain their own prerogatives, and to so legislate as to secure the rights of all citizens. How inadequate our words to express the profound gratitude of our hearts for those wise and true men who are now the hope of our nation. Stand by Thy servants in Congress assembled, neither dismayed by fears nor disheartened by dangers. May they maintain their integrity, wisely legislate for the preservation of the Republic, and protect those helpless millions whose guardians they are. Arise, O Lord! in this tremendous hour, and arouse the American people to their support. Inspire them with a sense of justice; may they realize their dangers, and discharge their duties; may they rise superior to prejudice and cast, and recognize the common brotherhood of mankind; grant that the press of our land may be honest in its convictions, temperate in its spirit, and healthful in its powerful influence; grant that the American Church may be an example to the nation in whatever is just, merciful and noble. On this day we praise Thee for the glad tidings which greet us, and for the renewed assurance that the people are for freedom and a loyal Government.

And now, Divine Father, we, Thy servants assembled, look to Thee for Thy Heavenly benediction. Forgive our sins, overrule our errors, implant within us the hope of immortality; take us into sweet fellowship with Thyself, and may we find the redemption of our souls in Christ. Regard Thy servants in great compassion. Thou knowest the trials of their faith, through which they have passed; the perils which they encountered for remaining faithful to liberty and loyal to their Government, and to Thee are known the evils which await them. O, Heavenly Friend and Guide, be Thou their defense, and in their distant homes deliver them from the violence of their enemies and Thine.

Almighty God, to-day we part, perchance to meet no more on earth; but ere we part we draw near to this solemn shrine, and dedicate ourselves anew to Thee and humanity. Here, on this mournful spot, in the hushed silence of the tomb, in the presence of the lamented dead, we humbly pledge ourselves to support the great principles of liberty, equality and Union, which he so signally illustrated in his life and administration. High Heaven record the solemn vow, strengthen us for its fulfillment, grant us the boundless satisfaction to enjoy its realization, and may it be our happiness to behold our country united, harmonious, just and wise, fulfilling the counsel of Thy infinite will, and, as the chosen instrument of Thy power, spread and establish the beneficent doctrine of the universal brotherhood of man, until all the nations of the earth shall dwell together in the sweet fellowship which is the earnest of our Heaven.

Unto the Father, the Son, and Holy Spirit, we will render ascriptions of everlasting praise. Amen.

The audience then slowly arose and in silence dispersed.

The pilgrimage was ended. The burial of the illustrious dead could scarcely have been more solemn and affecting. The Southern Loyalists are now to disperse to new duties, and many of them to new dangers. Among the ladies who decorated the tomb were Mrs. Governor Oglesby, Mrs. Tyndale, Mrs. Bailhach, Mrs. Tilton, Mrs. Bunn, Mrs. Reynolds, Mrs. Salter, Mrs. Cook, Mrs. Beveridge, Mrs. Miner, Mrs. Farnsworth, Mrs. Chatterton, Mrs. Nye, Mrs. Nutt, Mrs. Arnold, and others whose names I did not learn.

There is to be a grand reception speech to the Southern Loyalists to-night by Gov. Oglesby.

To-morrow the loyal hosts will hold an immense mass meeting here, at which the Southern delegates will speak.

CITY MATTERS.

THE TURF—OAKLAND PARK.

THE GREAT HORSE FAIR.

On Monday next the great horse fair at Oakland Park will commence. The best horses in world will be present, for we do not believe that Dexter nor Patchen, Jr., can be beat on any turf either in the United States or any other country. In addition to these races, there will be a grand hurdle race and other premiums, which will be duly announced. On Monday the opening premium will be fifty dollars, free for all horses that have not beaten three minutes in public, to go as they please, mile heats, best three in five. To the best will be awarded forty dollars, and to the second, ten dollars. On the same day there will be a similar premium, free for all running horses, half mile heats, three in five, catch weights. All the entries for these races will close at Oakland Park to-day. Ten per cent. entrance is required in all cases. All entries must be made by enclosing the entrance money, name of horse or horses, and number of premiums they wish to compete for, in an envelope, directed to the proprietor.

DEXTER.

On Thursday the celebrated horse Dexter, who has trotted a mile in the shortest time on record—two minutes eighteen and five-eighths seconds will be positively entered with others to compete for a premium of two thousand dollars for the best and one thousand dollars for the second best horse, three in five, to harness. Oakland Park is the only place as yet where Dexter will meet with his match for speed. Magoozler will make him "trump or no trick." The competition here will make it the most interesting exhibition of the kind that has ever taken place.

WHAT WILL THE PRESIDENT DO?

The report that the President had set on foot a scheme to revolutionize the Government, turns out to be false. Whether it was so intended or not, it has served to let him know that the country very generally regarded him as capable of the attempt, and the comments it has elicited has revealed to him what would be the consequences—particularly to himself—were he to make it. In this, though it was a startling and injurious report, it may have served a good purpose.

The prompt denial put forth is equivalent to the declaration that the verdict of the elections will be acquiesced in—at any rate, that no violent measures will be adopted to resist it. In fact, the threats made to disregard Congress as unconstitutional, to "stand at the door of Congress," and virtually set himself up as Dictator, elicited a favorable response from no quarter—not even in the South. Although the South applauded the President when he broke with Congress, and encouraged him at every step in his progress toward the revolutionary extreme, all the evidence from that quarter at the present time points to the conclusion that the leaders of the Southern sentiment have little faith in Mr. JOHNSON as a wise leader, and that they have less confidence in his succeeding. This was becoming apparent before the elections on Tuesday, and what has since been heard concerning the Southern temper, favors the conclusion that the Southern States will be strongly inclined toward the Amendment, and that gradually they will accept it in the spirit it was presented.

Considering all things, we imagine that the power and consequence of the President in the South are becoming less every day,—in the North there is abundant proof of what it is,—and in reality it matters very little what course he marks out for the future, except to himself. Should he ground arms and accept promptly—even if not cheerfully—the verdict of the elections, and proceed to co-operate with Congress in securing the objects of the Amendment and the necessary legislation incident to it, such co-operation would no doubt be valuable to the country and creditable to himself,—but should he take the opposite course, the policy of Congress—which is the will of the people—though it might be hindered, could not be defeated. That the South even would not hesitate long before throwing Mr. JOHNSON entirely off, is scarcely to be doubted. In truth, the Southern people have at no time trusted, nor do they now trust him, any further than, from day to day, he acts with and for them. They have no abiding confidence in either his wisdom or fidelity; and as they never have, so they never will, enter into bonds with him.

From whatever point we view the subject, Mr. JOHNSON and his cause must be regarded as a disastrous failure. He cannot help himself. The Democrats at the North, with whom he coalesced, even now denounce him, both for the want of faith he has shown in virtually withdrawing from the coalition, and for the heavy load which he was to them in the recent elections. Did they speak frankly—(and some of them do)—they would freely declare that Johnsonism, even with its patronage, has proved a curse to the Democratic party. The President has lost cast with them, and in marking out his future course, he cannot count on them for the vigorous support they gave him before the trial and defeat.

There would seem to be but one course possible for the President, and that is to acquiesce in the will of the people, as expressed in the October and November elections. Mr. JOHNSON is a man that makes little account of consistency. Though extremely self-willed and disposed to undertake hard jobs in order to have his way, he can see fate when, as in this case, it is right before him,—and the only conclusion is, that we have seen the last of the feat of "swinging round the circle" in the pursuit of impossible ends.

—Since the above was written, the correspondent of the Philadelphia Ledger, the author of the report concerning the revolutionary plot of the President, has repeated it. He insists that his original statement is true in every respect, and states further that the reason it is denied is, the plot having been exposed, a denial became necessary. We can bear witness to the unusual accuracy and intelligence of the correspondent in question, and we confided in the original report chiefly because it proceeded from him.

MR. COWAN GOES TO WASHINGTON.

Mr. COWAN will proceed to Washington to-day. Whether he goes in obedience to a summons from the President,—to receive or give consolation,—is not known. That the meeting between him and Mr. JOHNSON will be of an interesting character, no one can doubt, and it is the part Mr. COWAN has played and his position before the country, that justifies the giving of this publicity to his movements. The Senator has the reputation of having had much influence over the President when choosing his course. He is said to have promised to command Pennsylvania for him, to have pledged that there should be a majority of JOHNSON men in the Congressional delegation. He convinced the President that he had great power, not only at home but throughout the State. Now we can readily conceive that the President must want to see Mr. COWAN so that he may hear from the lips that made the promises the reasons why not one of them was fulfilled. It would be worth the journey to be permitted to be present at the interview between the betrayer and the betrayed. One would be almost inclined to pity Mr. JOHNSON, had he not shown himself, by his willingness to be duped, to be as bad as those who made him deceptive representations.

We are not certain that by anything he can now do or say, Mr. COWAN will, in ever so small a degree, be able to make reparation for the errors he has committed. He sinned against knowledge and warnings. He chose his course deliberately and pursued it persistently. He threw away all the wealth of a bright future and has been guilty of that which no public man has yet survived.

CHANCE FOR A HISTORIAN.

Any man ambitious of literary fame in the department of politics, has an inviting field before him in the late Philadelphia Convention party. The materials are abundant and easily classified, the period being brief, its events, although numerous and important, are capable of exhibition in a moderate compass. The qualifications requisite in the author are a clear eye, a steady hand and (politically speaking) a strong stomach. The theme presents itself with this unusual advantage, that it may be treated, according to the turn of the author's imagination, as a marriage, as a birth, as a case of extraordinary mortality, or as a funereal solemnity.

The party was organized by a junction of two factions which were well enough adapted to each other, and a third which might be and was regarded as a new comer. The wooing of the two former—the rebels and their sympathizers—for some years past has been a standing illustration of the sorrowful adage, that and the accession of a third element, from which high anticipations were entertained, only made matters worse, and as a conjugal affair, the tripartite arrangement had an inauspicious outset. As a nativity, it was announced with more than the pomp and circumstances that attend the tidings carried through an empire that a baby is born who, if he escape the usual complaints of childhood and survive his Imperial father, will one day be the lord and ruler of the people.

But the Convention party is more likely to strike the imagination of the writer as a case of mortality, and his production mainly of the obituary character, will embrace monitory suggestions on the danger of unlawful marriages, as the occasion of transmitting morbid constitutions to their issue. The party died of a preditary malady known to have existed in the parents, a form both severe and chronic. If the writer have a taste for obsequies, the case has attractive peculiarities for him, as the inhumation comprehends not only the defunct party, but also all the principal mourners.

We hope the article will be written. Our hasty synopsis must be taken as a mere glimpse of the richness of the theme. Don Quixote and Sir Hudibras are antiquities. The modern hero that eclipses both, awaits his Cervantes or his Butler.

REVOLUTIONS.

Revolutions are never begun in good Governments by good men, but by men of corrupt political principles, selfish, vain, and of strong will. Around such a nucleus are readily gathered adherents worse than itself. If there be money to invest in the enterprise, largesses distributed with a liberal hand, or any patronage that brings money, it will enlist the votaries of avarice. A subsidy to a venal press is not to be neglected. The cry of mad-dog is usually raised against those who are faithful to the right, and special claims to fidelity are raised by those who are pledged to the wrong.

Revolutions attempted against good Governments, if backed by appeals to arms, are to be suppressed by arms. No other logic meets the case. If attempted by political strategy, and the vote is appealed to, the vote of the wise and trusty will arrest the design. Good government is not easily overthrown, especially those of republican form. These are made and maintained by people who appreciate their value and are not disposed at all to surrender them.

We have, as a people, had some experience of revolutions, and lately, of revolutionary attempts. Our success, against bad government in the first case, and our success in supporting good government in the latter cases—the latest, on Thursday,—demonstrate the intelligence and patriotism of our people, and promote the pacification of the country, as well as the true honor and stability of our institutions.

JOHNSON MEN AND DEMOCRATS.

The JOHNSON men and Democrats have been seized with sudden and mutual disgust. Not only is this the fact here, but it is so all over. The falling out proceeds as it usually does, from a better understanding of each other. When the motive for deception no longer exists, and a failure has attended the game at over-reaching, the truth necessarily comes out. The masking over, mutual disgust naturally ensues. It would scarcely be suspected from the way they talk that the joyful yet tearful nuptials celebrated at Philadelphia, were so brief a time ago. Precisely which is the deceived and which the deceiver, is difficult to make out. The accusations on both sides are emphatic and backed by genuine disrelish. So far as the Democrats are concerned, they do not hesitate to speak plainly of Mr. COWAN and the way he has managed matters. Had a quarter of the patronage lodged in his hands been entrusted to them, they say they would have accomplished vastly more. On the contrary, the JOHNSON men assert that the record of the Democratic party would sink any man and ruin any administration. And so they are having it out. Not alone in Pittsburgh is this the case, but in Philadelphia; and we presume it is so generally. The state of things in the latter city is thus described by the North American:

"A sick and sorry looking crowd of people were about the streets during yesterday and evening. The sorry ones were the Democrats, the sick ones were the Johnson men. The former were denouncing the latter for the wretchedly feeble support that they gave them. The Johnson men were in sackcloth and ashes because they had parted with their birthright—not for a splendid ragout such as was made for Esau, but for a villainous mess of Fourth ward pepper-pot. To the Democrats they rendered no perceptible service, and are at this moment looked upon as political abortions, to whom in future the Democrats, who are really such, will give the back of their hand, the toe of their boot, and the other side of the way, when indisposed to either of the former modes of procedure towards them.

"It was not without interest, yesterday, that we observed at the various headquarters whence the opposition issued their thunderbolts the great change that had taken place in the fraternity between the Democrats and the Johnsonians. The cords that bound them in amity prove to have been but ropes of sand. The Democrats bowed down to them, and worshipped them. They overestimated the influence of the Johnson party. They supposed that the renegades would come to them bringing the marrow and the substance of the Republican party. They now learn, with unavailing sorrow, that the help of the Johnson men, to whom they gave nearly the entire crumb of their political loaf, had no more substantiality than a hopeless promise."

A REPRESENTATIVE MAN OVERBOARD.

The intelligent electors of the First Congressional District, Ohio, "went for" GEO. H. PENDLETON, the Democratic candidate, very severely. His defeat is the casting overboard of a representative man. Mr. P. has the reputation of being a decent man, with excellent ability—in fact, about the best of those who held to the doctrines of the rebellion and supported the South during the war. His nomination proved a decided failure at resurrection—and his defeat is one of those events which, with others of the kind, pointedly illustrate the fixed will of the people. Men of his class have a poor prospect for a future.

CONGRESS AND THE PRESIDENT.

The New York Times says the "verdict pronounced by the people of four States is merely the fulfillment of an expectation entertained by every man who has watched honestly the temper and purposes of the country,"—and the same journal does not hesitate to say that the November elections will result in the reaffirmation of the verdict. The Times then administers the following sound advice to Mr. JOHNSON:

"The President must be content to see Congress push forward its new method of settlement, despite protestations and vetoes, or must frankly accept the verdict pronounced by the people who elected him, and use his opportunities to hasten restoration on the only basis that is practicable. He has stated his own case, and the people have refused to accept it. The part of statesmanship surely is to concede graciously and promptly to the popular requirements, and to exert the influence of the Executive in support of the compromise now tendered to the Southern States."

N. CORNING JUDD has been nominated for Congress by the Republicans of the Chicago district, in the place of JOHN WENTWORTH, who has been dropped. The contest was animated, but the result appears to be acquiesced in.

Our Special Dispatches.

We take occasion to acknowledge our indebtedness to our special correspondents throughout the State for their promptness in transmitting the result of the election in their several localities, thus enabling the COMMERCIAL to give fuller and more satisfactory returns than were to be found in any other paper in the State.

To Mr. A. Q. Casselberry, the General Manager of the Western Union Telegraph office, we are indebted for many favors on election night and on other occasions. Mr. Casselberry afforded us valuable assistance in reaching our correspondents, and thereby promoted the early receipt of our dispatches. Mr. C. is an able executive officer, and dispatches business in a most exemplary manner.

Mr. Voigt, manager of the Atlantic and Pacific Telegraph Company, likewise favored us on election night with returns, and obliged us in keeping the wires open to a late hour in order that we might receive our specials from the southern part of the State.

Public Feeling in Texas.

By a letter from Texas, which we have just perused in an exchange paper, written by an observing Unionist, we are gratified to learn that the Texans are accepting the situation in good faith. We trust, as it gives encouragement to hope, the time is not far distant when we may boast of a restored Union. The writer claims that Texas is misrepresented in some respects. While a few of the former leaders in the rebellion are hostile to the Government many have assumed a quiet and submissive attitude toward the Government and obey implicitly the laws of the country, Union men are beginning to speak out their sentiments more openly and fearlessly than at any time since the war, and the freedmen are better protected in their rights. If all this is true, which we are willing to believe until events shall contradict them, we shall look for immediate and greater changes in Texas so soon as the result of the late elections in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois and Iowa have had time to work their proper influence over the public mind of Texas. The conquering party are not disposed to deal unjustly with their foes, and have not been at any time. The policy of the country is the amendment of the organic law of the land by which future rebellions will be rendered even more futile than the last, and the blessings of citizenship and of free institutions guaranteed to all classes within the national domain.

FUN AND POLITICS.—A party of gentlemen, said to represent both political parties, some of whom served under General McCandless, the new Copperhead Senator from Philadelphia, had a little fun at the General's expense the day after the election. The election figures show that General McCandless is chosen State Senator in the stead of Hon. Jeremiah Nichols, who has, during his two terms, been of very great benefit to the Philadelphia local interests. When a school boy, General McCandless acquired the nickname of "Buck." It adhered to him up to manhood. The party of his friends above referred to brought down to his vinegar factory, on Washington street, a splendid male sheep, put him upon the flat roof of the factory, where he was visible two squares distant, raised a big flag, and took their leave, saying nothing to anybody.

SOUR GRAPES—VERY.—The Richmond Examiner makes a very wry face over the first taste of the election news, thus: "The business of sitting up to a late hour in order to receive unsatisfactory telegrams is not pleasant. This is what we did last night. At the time of going to press the associated press and special dispatches received by us fully confirmed the anticipations of a Radical triumph in Pennsylvania which we expressed in yesterday's Examiner. Truly may we say, 'blessed are those who expect nothing, for they shall not be disappointed.'"

GENERAL INTELLIGENCE.

The weekly mortuary statistics of New York present the startling fact of wide-spread destitution in that city. Twelve persons died in that city last week from starvation. If this be the rate for seven days at this season, what are we to expect the coming winter?

Some of the New York newspapers complain against the revival of the old target company nuisance in that city, which was abated by the war. But the days of peace returning, the target companies are budding forth again. They generally consist of a dozen or two of strapping fellows, got up in red shirts and glazed caps, marching along the streets with a brass band in front, and a disconsolate darkey in the rear.

Great expectations are entertained by some of a brisk winter trade in the South. Efforts are reported as being made to divert cotton from Savannah to other ports, one of which is at least novel. Some merchants in New Orleans, it seems, are trying to make that city the market for the cotton grown upon the banks of the Chattahoochee and Flint Rivers and in their vicinity. The plan is to bring it down in river steamers to Apalachicola, and thence by sea to New Orleans. The advantages offered are cheaper freight in this way than by rail to Savannah, and an advance in price per pound as Louisiana cotton, from which it will be almost impossible to separate it in the market.

The New York Journal of Commerce proprietors have purchased the property in which their newspaper has been published for thirty-five years, and re-fitted the building throughout. One peculiarity about its management is that no work whatever is done on Sunday, the employees being required to work on Saturday night until midnight, and resume duty immediately after midnight on Sunday. This is a rule of the office which has never been departed from.

Dr. Beaumer, a wealthy planter of Mississippi, is at present in New York urging poor Northern families to emigrate to the South instead of the West, and cultivate cotton. He holds out very flattering inducements to them, and by agitating the question continually he will no doubt succeed in taking along quite a respectable colony. It will be up hill work for the Doctor to turn the Western tide of emigration.

An old fashioned squirrel hunt took place at Akr[illegible], N. J., last week, by a party of gentlemen Buffalo. The game principally consisted of squirrels, with some rabbits and 'coons, and when piled might be measured by the bushel. Many of the hunters counted from two hundred to two hundred and fifty, and one veteran soldier of the late war ran up a score of three hundred. Four thousand one hundred and ninety squirrels were bagged in a single day by the entire party.

Mr. McMillin, a British woolen manufacturer, has determined to remove his establishment to this country and locate it at Buffalo. The arrangements have been completed and the machinery is now being erected. This is an important event in the history of Buffalo.

A project is on foot for supplying New York city with gas manufactured at the coal mines in Pennsylvania. It is proposed to convey it through iron pipes, a distance of one hundred and fifty miles, to the city. It is asserted that it can be furnished at a much cheaper rate than is now paid.

The rumor seems to be gaining currency in England that many Wesleyan ministers have been knocking for admission into the Church of England. It is reported that about a dozen of dissenting ministers of the Wesleyan faith have been admitted to St. Andrew's College, near Liverpool, where students of their class may briefly qualify themselves for orders in the established church.

PERSONAL.

—The death of Dr. Daniel Brainard, one of the first surgeons of the present day, and who enjoyed a reputation in this country and in Europe co-extensive with the profession to which he devoted his life, died at the Sherman House in Chicago, on Wednesday night, from cholera. He was born in Rome, New Jersey, and had reached his fifty-second year. He graduated at Jefferson University, and was the founder of Rush Medical College. He was a man of great prominence and of methodical business habits, and his death is a great blow to the profession of Surgery and medicine throughout the country. He leaves a wife and two children, now residing in Europe.

—The current rumor that Mrs. Senator Sprague, who is a daughter of Chief Justice Chase, has applied for a divorce, is denied. Mrs. S. is in Europe, where she has been spending the summer.

—The Rev. C. A. Holmes, D. D., pastor of the Smithfield Street M. E. Church of Pittsburgh, has been elected President of the Iowa Wesleyan University, in the room of Dr. Charles Elliott, resigned. It gives us pleasure to note this recognition of the worth of an eminent Pittsburgh minister.

—The Buffalo papers tell how a Canadian reporter came to grief by attempting to get General Sherman's opinion on Fenian matters. As, during the General's visit to the provinces last summer, he was stepping on the cars to leave Toronto, to him comes an energetic, mutton chopped reporter for a Toronto paper, and, whipping out pencil and note book, says: "General Sherman, will you 'ave the kindness to give me your views hon the Fenian question?" "Go to ——," said Tecumseh, as he stepped on the train, and left the reporter to meditate over his blasted item.

—William E. Rich, of Troy, who is to preside at the approaching colored convention at Albany, N. Y., is a representative man of his race. He went into the family of old Governor Levi Lincoln, of Massachusetts, when very young, but was emancipated and became wealthy by persistent industry. Among his people he is in every respect—intellectually, morally and socially—a foremost man. He has founded several Presbyterian churches and the Rich public school of Troy.

—Mrs. James Gordon Bennett, wife of the proprietor of the New York Herald, still lingers around that fashionable resort—Saratoga Springs, and is to be seen almost every day driving a smart pair of ponies through its avenues.

Consecration of a Bishop for China and Japan.

Special Correspondence of the Pittsburgh Commercial.

NEW YORK, October 5.

Wednesday morning, 3d inst., at St. John's Chapel, New York, the Rev. Channing Moore Williams was consecrated and set apart as Missionary Bishop to China and Japan. To witness the consecration of a Bishop is an event in the life of a clergyman, and many have never beheld this solemn service. For this reason, and owing also to the very recent adjournment of the Diocesan Convention of New York,—many members of which are yet in the city,—a great part of the assembly were clergymen. The session also of the House of Bishops, now being held to elect a Missionary Bishop for our far West, was the occasion of bringing together more Bishops than have ever been present at any consecration, excepting that of Bishop Quintard's, in the American Church.

There were present the presiding Bishop, Bishop Hopkins, of Vermont; Bishops Smith, of Wisconsin; McCoskry, of Michigan; Elliott, of Georgia; Lee, of Delaware; Johns, of Virginia; Eastburn, of Massachusetts; Chase, of New Hampshire; Williams, of Connecticut; Potter, of New York; Clark, of Rhode Island; Odenheimer, of New Jersey; Whipple, of Minnesota; Talbot, of Indiana; Wilmer, of Alabama; Quintard, of Tennessee; Randall, of Colorado; Kerfoot, of Pittsburgh. The Bishops sat in the order of their seniority, (by consecration,) from the presiding Bishop, Bishop Kerfoot and Bishop Randall occupying the front chairs in the outer chancel. Morning prayer was read by Rev. Drs. Smith, of New York, and Littlejohn, of Brooklyn. The music was conducted by Dr. Walter, of Trinity Chapel, N. Y., with a choir of men and boys in surplices. The Psalter and Canticles were well chanted in the pure, clear voice of the boys, but when "Old Hundred" was sung to the Psalm, and the old tune to Bishop Heber's missionary hymn,—"From Greenland's Icy mountains,"—the boys' voices were lost, and the grand chorale with the pipe organ was overpowering in effect. Bishop Johns, of Virginia, once the instructor and Diocesan of the Bishop elect, preached the sermon from St. Luke, xvi:15. The address to the zealous Missionary who has been laboring for ten years past among the half civilized of the far East, and who is soon to depart again as an apostle to the heathen of China, and Japan was solemn and affecting. Bishop McCoskry read the Epistle and Bishop Kemper the Gospel. The Bishop elect was then presented to the Primate, seated in front of the altar, by Bishops Potter, of New York, and Talbot, of Indiana. After putting on the Episcopal habit, he was then consecrated and commissioned by the laying on of hands. The old hymn—"Veni, Creator Spiritus," was not sung over the Bishop as at Bishop Kerfoot's consecration at Pittsburg, but was read by the Presiding Bishop and the other Bishops alternately. The Holy Communion was then administered, and the vast congregation dismissed with the blessing of peace. Right gratifying is it to every Christian to know that the late lamented Bishop Boone has now a successor, and the full and perfect mission of the Church is not to fail nor to be given up in China and Japan.

QUEEN VICTORIA'S CROWN.—The Imperial State Crown of Queen Victoria is now thirty-two years' old. It consists of diamonds, pearls, rubies, sapphires, and emeralds, set in silver and gold; it has a crimson velvet cap, with ermine border, and is lined with white silk. Its gross weight is thirty-nine oz. five pwts. Troy. In front of the crown, and in the center of a diamond Maltese cross, is the famous ruby said to have been given to Edward the Black Prince by Don Pedro, King of Castile, after the battle of Najera, A. D. 1367. This ruby was worn in the helmet of Henry the Fifth at the battle of Agincourt, A. D. 1415. It is pierced quite through, after the Eastern custom, the upper part of the piercing being filled up by a small ruby. Around this ruby, to form the cross, are seventy-five brilliant diamonds. Three other Maltese crosses, forming the two side and back of the crown, have emerald centers, and contain respectively one hundred and thirty-two, one hundred and twenty-four, and one hundred and thirty brilliant diamonds. Between the four Maltese crosses are four ornaments in the form of a French fleur de lis, with four rubies in the centers, and surrounded by rose diamonds, containing respectively eighty-five, eighty-six, and eighty seven rose diamonds. From the Maltese crosses issue four imperial arches composed of oak leaves and acorns; the leaves containing seven hundred and twenty-eight rose, table, and brilliant diamonds; thirty-two pearls, forming the acorns, set in cups containing fifty-four rose diamonds and one table diamond. The total number of diamonds in the arches and acorns one hundred and eight brilliants; one hundred and sixteen table, and five hundred and fifty-nine rose diamonds.

REAL ESTATE IN NEW YORK.—The value of real estate in New York is only beginning to be asserted. Prices have lately been rising rapidly, and it only needs the settlement of the Southern question to send them up still higher. The property adjoining the new Herald building, consisting of two lots, and having a frontage of fifty-nine feet on Broadway, has just been sold to the Park National Bank for $360,000.

CANADA.

Warlike Preparations Going Forward—Rumors of a Deep Laid Scheme Against the United States—Arms and Ammunition Extensively Distributed Among the People—The South Expected to Aid the Movement, etc., etc.

We are advised that in the British North American provinces, active yet quiet preparations are still going forward in view of the general fear which has seized upon the public mind of the Canadians, that they are to be molested in some way, and very shortly, by the Fenians. The magnitude of these preparations has in the whirl of political excitement been overlooked, and it may be that the design is not, after all, merely to prepare to receive those who seek the liberation of Ireland, but as it is hinted, there is an ulterior object in view, that the cause for which this warlike preparation is made means ultimately a menace to the United States. On this point the Toronto correspondence of the Detroit Post says:—

"Rumor, several weeks ago, said that the establishment of a strong regular garrison in the provinces and the thorough discipline and drill of a large volunteer and militia force at suitably appointed places of instruction had been determined on by the imperial ministry; and, at the moment these preparations put affairs in a state to warrant it with perfect safety, the Government of Great Britain would imperatively demand of our Government to know explicitly and assuredly what were its intentions with reference to Fenianism, and would require the United States to put its foot upon and crush out of being every organization within its limits that contemplated directly or indirectly the least disturbance of British reign over territory now subject to the English crown. Rumor further allowed only a short time for the United States Government to indicate its mind in the matter, and at the expiration of that short time, if the assurances and actions demanded did not come as explicitly and entirely as desired, war would be declared, and the American frontier, at one general move, be occupied or laid in ashes. Cities are to be besieged and possessed, shipping is to be seized, fortifications are to be leveled or captured, and complete occupation or command of the entire frontier line is to be effected before the United States has time to distribute its forces in sufficient strength to meet the general powerful attack at all points. Although in aid of this deep-laid scheme a second insurrection in the South is anticipated, nothing is to be left to chance; and if that event should occur, it is to be counted only as a fortunate and unexpected potent ally, opportunely springing to the aid of the only endurable form of government in the history of time. Rumor said all this several weeks ago, and since then your correspondent has quietly but industriously been striving to trace rumor to its source. That he has found many who believe in the report and know nothing definite about it is a fact; that he has found many who hope for and are ready to glory in it is also true; that he has found none who can definitely throw light on the whole subject is also a fact. Every true Briton in Canada desires it in preference to the existing uncertainty of a peace, and indirectly he has heard of a certain official of the Provincial ministry avowing it. All these are powerful facts which should open the eyes of the Executive of the nation and his cabinet, and induce preparations to repel along our frontier commensurate with the preparations ostensibly to meet Fenianism, but which could be used, and undoubtedly are designed, for the invasion of our country. In the little township of Bowmanville, in the west riding of the county of Durham, which is not fifty miles distant from Toronto, Enfield rifles have been distributed to every one. Farmers entering the town from which the township takes its name have left with as many in their wagons as their households could use, and in receiving have been significantly instructed to accustom themselves to the use of them. Glistening bayonets and prepared ball cartridges have accompanied the arms. The Brownsville Statesman, innocently boasting, makes known the existence of this fact in its immediate vicinity, unconscious that the same states of affairs prevails throughout the provinces from Windsor to Halifax. Is not the accumulation of munitions of war along the border, at points convenient as supply depots to forces invading the United States, ominous?—and especially so when connected with the weekly arrival of hundreds of British regulars on Canadian shores, and the assurances from the Imperial Government that more are on the way, coupled with a score of equally significant movements in progress?"

We have only this to add that the Post's correspondent is bent upon getting up a huge scare, which, like the alleged scheme which is its basis, cannot succeed in any event. It is only reasonable to suppose that the Canadians should be wary of the Fenians, but we do not believe they are at all anxious to engage with the United States in battle, for they are too sensible not to know that we would gobble them all up in about forty-eight hours, England and the rebel States, to the contrary notwithstanding.

Trouble in Trinity Church, New York.

The New York correspondent of the Chicago Republican furnishes the following bit of gossip concerning the financial affairs of Trinity Church in New York, which is supposed to be the wealthiest religious body in the United States: "The startling exhibition of the financial affairs of Trinity church, by which a heavy defalcation, involving several millions of dollars, has been discovered—perpetrated by whom is kept a profound secret—and the legal movements of the heirs of Anneke Jane to recover the vast estate unjustly withheld from them, has created an intense sensation. Gotham loves a sensation, and she has received a new one now, from a source little expected. In the significant array of facts presented by the heirs of Anneke Jane a wide spread commotion among the wealthy band who have charge of the property has been created. Most of the descendants of the worthy Dutch lady reside in New Jersey. Thirty years ago the same claims were presented for the first time, but the matter was compromised in some way by the trustees of the church, on the payment of a good round sum, and the claim was not pressed. Since then the descendants of these heirs have grown to man and woman's estate, they have ferreted out more important papers bearing upon their right to possess the property, and if common report speaks truly, can they be proved genuine they will be able to dispossess the church of two-thirds of its landed estate and such improvements thereon as may attach to it. Anneke Jane, it seems, owned the now valuable land held by the church, below Canal street, extending, in detached pieces to Bowling Green, on Broadway east to Front street, and west to the North river. Some portion of this she sold, devised, and bequeathed, but that which is held by the Trinity Corporation she merely leased to it for a number of years, ninety-nine it is said, which time has long since expired. The lawyers are rubbing their hands with glee at the rich pickings which are likely to grow out of the controversy."

Naturalization in Colombia.

With all the looseness which characterizes our naturalization laws, we have not yet attained the improvements (?) which exist in the United States of Colombia. All that is there required of the foreigner to become a citizen is a declaration, which makes him a citizen ipso facto. But he may become a citizen without any declaration, and in a most surprising way. For instance: If he should marry one of the fair Colombians, and be a good or bad husband for more than two years, he becomes a citizen. Bachelors have to remain four years to authorize this presumption. If he is a merchant carrying on business, he acquires the right of citizenship by the fact of his being engaged in trade. If he speculates in South American lots, and becomes a purchaser of land, although he may be soon afterward a seller, citizenship has descended upon his shoulders. Now, this might be pleasant enough if the assumption of citizenship were not attended by an increase of obligations. But the presumptions which the Columbian law authorizes against strangers who enjoy the pleasures of a residence there, bring with them a liability to "burdens, personal tributes, employments, military services, forced loans and exactions." The happy foreigner has no concern with such things; but the naturalized citizen, either by his own act, or by presumption, has to bear his share in them. The easiest way, therefore, to bring down these duties upon one's shoulders is to get married, and to live with the Columbian charmer two years.

...ithin the last fortnight it had oc...o this young woman to set herself ...dgment upon the doctor's conduct, ...mature deliberation, she had ...the conclusion that he had either ...great mistake or was doing very ...The idea troubled her sorely.

Miss Lizzie was a young lady who rather piqued herself upon the possession of an independent judgment, and paid the youthful penalty, of course, by sometimes too much undervaluing the experience of her seniors. Her early training had perhaps encouraged this state of mind; for her father, dear as she had been to him, had not been able to steer altogether clear of that wretched system of 'spoiling till five, trying experiments till fifteen, and contradicting up to twenty.' Besides all this, Miss Lizzie had lately been studying Dr. Winslow's 'Obscure Diseases,' that most popular of scientific works, and had rebelled against the theories therein propounded with all her heart. 'Very Hard Cash' had fallen in her way immediately afterwards, and she had glowed with sympathy for Alfred's wrongs and Julia's love, and for all the supposed victims detained in a thousand lunatic asylums by commissioners in lunacy like those described by Mr. Reade.

And now Walter Stone had crossed her path, and lo! her dreams were realized. He was pleasant, handsome, and as gentle as Alfred; and, more than all, he had appealed to her compassion, and poured into her ear a piteous story of the unnatural brother, who, for the sake of obtaining the management of his (Walter's) property, had condemned him to lifelong captivity. Lizzie knew as a fact that his brother had consigned him to Dr. Holford's charge, and that, in spite of his apparent liberty, he was narrowly watched—in itself a suspicious circumstance, considering that nervous ailments only were the plea for his incarceration. She had even heard Dr. Holford chuckle over the story of the way in which he and Edward Stone had managed to entrap Walter into voluntarily giving his purse into their care, so as to render his escape, by train or other conveyance, impossible.

And this was a sane man! Lizzie's brain took fire at the thought. To dispose of the certificate of lunacy was the work of a moment, were they not all—those mad doctors, and Dr. Winslow in particular—ready to swear to any man's insanity at a moment's notice? And then Walter had told her that he had himself given opportunity to his enemies in some moments of excitement consequent on the loss of money. But the doctor, there was the rub. Could it be possible that Dr. Holford, the upright and honorable, had deliberately lent himself to this vile plot? Even Lizzie's excited imagination could not lead her to believe that. No, the man was not mad—that was certain—but the doctor had been deceived; his keen eye had been blinded by Walter Stone's perfidious friends, who, though they had cautiously avoided committing themselves by speaking of more than "nerves," had so cunningly worded their artful testimony that the doctor had jumped to the conclusion, without much personal observation, that Walter must be insane. That could not be a fault—at least—well, hardly, or if it were, she, Lizzie Stuart, would undeceive him, and enable him to make atonement. And then she went off into a day-dream, and was just in the middle of a speech from the doctor, expressive of his deep gratitude to her for having, by her woman's keen-sightedness and quick judgment, disabused him of the idea under which he had been laboring, &c., &c., when she looked up, and behold the moon had risen, and was already lighting up the top branches of the hawthornes! She turned into the house, fully resolved to speak seriously to the doctor the very next morning.

The moon was high in the heavens when Lizzie Stuart went that evening, as her custom was, to sit in the nursery while the nurse went down to her supper. At these times Lizzie always sat in a particular chair by the window. Nurse's white-curtained bed stood in a recess at the back of the room, a little to one side, but facing the fire—still necessary at night—was the baby's bassinet, of which little but the hood was to be seen from where Lizzie sat. The other two children slept in what was in fact, an adjoining room, though the door of communication had long been removed, to make the two nurseries, as far as possible, into one. There was no light in the room but the moonshine and the glimmer of the fire; Lizzie leant back in her chair, and resumed her day-dream. By and by a low knock came to the door.

"Come in," said Lizzie, wondering that nurse should have made such haste at her supper.

The door opened softly, and Walter Stone put his head into the room. "I want to speak to you," he whispered excitedly, "you must let me come in. It is most important."

There was something queer about his manner, but Lizzie, strong in her conviction, was in no wise frightened. Besides, he had talked to her that day of escape, and she longed to repeat the arguments she had used against any such scheme, for its success would be fatal to the doctor's credit. While she hesitated, he stole silently up to her, closing the door behind him. No other man living would Lizzie have allowed to remain there, but her sympathy for Walter Stone was deep and strong, all the more from her love for the man who was doing him such unwitting injury. How grieved the doctor would be to-morrow she thought, and she let Walter stay. He sat down by her side, and remained silent. After a minute or two the stillness grew oppressive, and she opened her mouth to speak. As she did so, she looked in his face, ghastly in the moonlight! Ah! how awful was the change there! His pleasant, careless look had disappeared, and in its stead was a dreadful expression of fixed malignity, of insane cunning and rage; the glare of a maniac's eye caught and fixed hers as she looked. Horror stricken she drew back, but he bent forward and said in a hissing whisper:

"I've something to show you. I've locked the door, and we can't be interrupted; no, no. Look here!" and he drew from his pocket an ordinary dinner knife; on which the moonbeams glittered hideously.

"Beautiful, isn't it?" he muttered, as he stroked and seemed to fondle it, turning it from side to side. "True steel—the real thing! Not for you though, not for you—for those little devils that cling round you, and prevent your coming with me. I'll set you free, I'll——" and he lapsed into inarticulate murmurs, still stroking the knife. Never, in all her life, did Lizzie Stuart forget the sensations of that moment; they come back to her often in dreams, even now. She did not lose consciousness, but she could not move; her heart seemed to stand still, and her brain to reel.

"The youngest first," he whispered at last, and leaving her suddenly, he darted towards the hearth. For one second the knife gleamed brightly in the moonlight as he brandished it aloft; the next he had plunged it deep into the bassinet. Oh God, there was no cry!

A wild shriek rose to Lizzie's lips. Repressing it with a violent effort, she collected her senses and walked to his side.

"I must kill the others myself," she said, with an unfaltering voice; "let me do it—they would not be quiet otherwise."

The maniac turned towards her a horrible face of triumph.

"You're one of the right sort!" he exclaimed enthusiastically. "The young May moon is beaming, love. The glow-worm's lamp is gleaming, love. How sweet to rove—No, that's not it—So she kilted her gown o' green satin, and tuck it it up to her knee—Lizzie Lindsay—that's you—Lord Ronald Clan Donald—that's me. Won't we be happy? Now then!"

"Yes, I am going," she said, "still speaking calmly; "wait here till I come back."

He stooped to draw the knife out of the bassinet.

"No, don't do that," she whispered, forcing herself to lay her hand upon his arm, and turning away her eyes, lest the sight that might meet them should unnerve her, "I have a fancy for doing it differently."

He stood upright again and motioned her to go, and only as she moved where the other children slept, she remembered with sick horror that there was no door between the rooms. Despair gave her the courage, she quickened her pace; he did not follow her—there was a moment's respite. Softly and rapidly she threw the coverlet over the two fair sleeping heads, then she flew to the bell. A violent pull—another—and the bell rope broke in her hand. Would any one come? The madman heard the twang of the wires, and suspected treachery. He sprang towards the room, but Lizzie was too quick for him. She sprang towards the doorway with dilated eyes and upraised hand.

"Walter Stone, go back," she commanded in a solemn voice. "It is all done. I forbid your entering here."

For a moment the lunatic cowered before her, awed by the light in those gleaming eyes, then he sprang at her throat like a wild beast. An instant's struggle, an instant's agony like unto death, and with a mighty crash the door burst open, and Dr. Holford, with the exertion of his whole strength, dragged the madman from the choking girl. To hold him singly was impossible. He broke from the doctor's grasp, threw up the window, and with a loud laugh, leaped into the garden below, where the dull thud of his fall was heard just as the assistant, whose carelessness had permitted him to secrete the knife, appeared upon the scene.

"Go down, go down," cried the doctor, pointing to the window. The assistant looked out and hurriedly disappeared, and the doctor gave his attention to Lizzie. She had not fainted—she could not do so—not, at all events, with the dreadful news untold, but she was gasping for breath.

The doctor bent over her. "Lizzie, dear Lizzie, look up, I saw how it was. You were defending my children. You have saved their lives. Try to look up and tell me you are not hurt."

But Lizzie shrank from the tender words, and cowered miserably in her chair. She strove to compel her parched tongue to speak, and tell him that by her folly she had caused the death of his baby, but a hissing gurgle came instead of words, and ended in a hysteric shriek. The servants, and nurse among them, had come crowding in by this time, and a loud exclamation from the latter startled them all.

"Gracious powers! what is this?" and she drew forth the knife from the bassinet, and held it up in view of the rest, its polished surface yet undimmed.

"Well, the Lord be praised for his mercy! it were His providence, that it were, that put it into my head all of a sudden today, that baby were a growing too big for a bassinet, and put her in the old cot by my bedside, and drawed my curtains round her, and there she is, the precious lamb, awake and a smiling at us all, as good as sugar."

Lizzie heard the words, or rather some dim idea of their meaning penetrated to her brain, but the relief was too sudden to be realized at once. She understood that confession was not needful, but remorse was as bitter as ever. She stood up and held out her hands imploringly.

"Can—you—for—give?" she whispered piteously, and fell forward in a dead faint upon the doctor's shoulder.

For many, many months Dr. Holford tended Lizzie through the nervous fever that followed upon her swoon. At one time he almost despaired of her recovery, but youth and a sound constitution conquered, and she rose at last from her sick bed, the shadow of what she had been.

The doctor pronounced change of air and scene to be absolutely necessary during her convalescence, and simultaneously discovered that he had been working too hard, and required a holiday and a month or two abroad. Rumor states that he imparted these conclusions to Lizzie Stuart, and made sundry other confidences to her, during one very long and earnest conversation which they had, walking slowly up and down—her feeble steps tenderly supported by his arm—under the old hawthornes, brilliant by this time with autumnal berries.

You have seen Mrs. Holford. Do you wonder now at the strange look in her eyes?

Walter Stone fractured his skull in his fall. He was insensible for many days, but at length consciousness returned, and those who watched around his bed thanked God to see that all traces of insanity had disappeared. They looked forward hopefully to the future, but his career was ended. He sank gradually, and died in a few weeks. He lived long enough to be deeply thankful to have been spared from the guilt of the awful crime he had so nearly committed, and to send, through Dr. Holford, a message of gratitude and blessing to the woman who, by her self-command and courage, had saved him from going to the grave with blood-stained hands.

EDUCATIONAL.

Duff's College,

Fifth street, Pittsburgh, Penna.,

FOUNDED IN 1840.

And Incorporated by Legislative Charter

THE ONLY INSTITUTION of the kind IN THE UNION conducted by a practiced BUSINESS MAN. Our highest commercial authorities, East and West, pronounce his systems of Book-keeping unequalled—comprehending every department of business, and yet so skillfully condensed that the attentive student masters the whole in six or eight weeks. It consists of STOCK BOOKS, closed once with a loss and twice with a gain—exhibiting by three different methods the transfer of old to new books. PARTNERSHIP BOOKS, conducted by three different methods, exhibiting the transfer of old to new books, with the introduction of a new partner. And practically illustrating the PRIVATE LEDGER, by means of which the results of the business are kept out of the general books, for the use of the partners only. The settlement of Partnership Books by SINGLE ENTRY, with six practical illustrations, exhibiting the books re-opened by double entry. A concise rule for rectifying DERANGED DOUBLE ENTRY BOOKS, with six specifications. The gain or loss found, and the books correctly re-opened. The learner is also exercised in OPENING BOOKS, from eight specifications, including special conditions not often met with in business. Also, a series of exercises in CLOSING BOOKS, from new and peculiar specifications. The learner also writes about eighty BUSINESS FORMS of Prommissory Notes, Judgment Notes, Drafts, Orders, Bills of Exchange, Accounts, Invoices, &c., &c. Also, a series of BUSINESS LETTERS, which, with the business forms, are all connected with his course of Book-keeping, making it a regular course of business practice, with a course of twenty-five LECTURES UPON BOOK-KEEPING, by the Senior Principal, explaining all the business matter recorded in the text. Also, twelve LECTURES ON BUSINESS SUBJECTS. How every one may get rich. How to get rich by trading. The causes of commercial failures. On speculations. OOK-KEEPING. In this department students are instructed from the only complete system of accounts adapted to Western river and Lake Navigation published.

Our full course of business practice includes about FIFTY BUSINESS BOOKS, ruled to about THIRTY DIFFERENT FORMS, viz: 11 Ledgers, 7 Day-books, 5 Journals, 6 bill-books, 4 Cash-books, 4 Sales-books, 2 Invoice-books, 1 Discount-book, 1 Check-register, 1 Deposit register, 2 Collection-registers, 1 Tickler, 1 Hands-register, 1 Freight-book, 2 Passage-books, 1 Fuel-book. These books practically record about SIX HUNDRED BUSINESS TRANSACTIONS, comprehending Duff's original plan of business education introduced twenty-five years ago. How far others have succeeded in imitating him will be best seen by comparing the business papers and books of their pupils with those of the graduates of this institution.

Central

PACIFIC R. R. CO.,

OF CALIFORNIA,

Interest at the Rate of Six per Cent. per annum, payable Semi-Annually, on the First days of January and July.

Principal and Interest payable in U. S. Gold Coin in the City of New York.

Amount of Issue, $7,336,000

In Coupon Bonds of $1,000 each.

The Bonds have 30 Years to run, and are secured by a First Mortgage, constituting an absolute prior lien on that portion of the Road, Equipments, Franchises, and Entire Property of the Central Pacific Railroad Company, located in the State of California, and extending from Sacramento City to the California State Line, forming a part of the Great Pacific Railroad Route, adopted and aided by the United States Government.

The amount of these First Mortgage Bonds to be issued per mile is limited by law to the amount of United States Bonds allowed and issued to aid the construction of the Road, and the Mortgage by which they are secured is declared by Act of Congress to constitute a lien prior and superior to that of the United States Government.

The aid received from the Government (in amount equal to this First Mortgage) is economically and judiciously applied to the construction and equipment of the Road, together with nearly $7,000,000 received from Stock Subscriptions and other sources. The first Mortgage therefore amounts to but about 35 per cent. of the actual cost and value of the Property which it covers.

The Road is now completed, equipped and running from Sacramento City to Alta, a distance of 73 miles, and the earnings for the three months ending August 1st, were as follows, viz:

MAY, 1866	$65,115 83
JUNE "	67,420 78
JULY "	85,000 00

IN GOLD.

The earnings are steadily increasing, and are estimated at over $160,000 in Gold for the month of August—the official report for that month not having been received at this date.

The construction of the Road is g[oing] vigorously forward—24 miles additional being nearly ready for the cars,—and it will probably be in full operation to the California State Line—156 miles from Sacramento City—during the Summer of 1867, when its earnings must be very large, as the entire trade of Nevada, and a large proportion of that of Utah, Idaho and Montana must pass over its line. It has been shown by reliable statistics that in 1863 over $13,000,000 in Gold was paid for freighting goods from California to Nevada alone.

This part of the great Pacific Railroad Route is destined to be one of the most profitable lines of railroad in the world, and its First Mortgage Bonds are among the best secured and most desirable investments ever offered.

Over $1,000,000 has already been expended in grading beyond the point to which the road is now running, and the iron is bought and paid for sufficient to lay the track the entire distance to the State Line.

The Road has been completed and equipped thus far without the sale of a single dollar of its First Mortgage Bonds, and they are now offered to the public for the first time, after the earnings of the Road have reached the sum of $160,000 per month in Gold, only about 25 per cent. of which is required for operating expences.

The Bonds are offered at 95 per cent. and accrued interest from July 1st, in Currency. Orders may be forwarded to us direct, or through the principal Banks and Bankers in all parts of the country.

Remittances may be made in drafts on New York, or in Legal Tender Notes, National Bank Notes, or other funds current in this city, and the Bonds will be forwarded to any address by Express, free of charge. Inquiries for farther particulars, by mail or otherwise will receive punctual attention.

CITY MATTERS.

Progress and Improvements.

It must be a source of pleasure to those whose interests centre in this vicinity, to notice the improvements that are being rapidly developed, to place Pittsburgh first on the list as a manufacturing city in this country. Her local advantages are such, when coupled with capital and skill, as cannot fail to produce this result. A commendable spirit of improvement is manifested in every department of business, especially that pertaining to mechanics. Machinery of a better class and greater efficiency, is being substituted in every branch of mechanical industry, while her mechanics are supplying every demand of the country with implements and machinery which, for adaptness, economy and superior workmanship, cannot be excelled.

Prominent among others is the Duplex Engine, manufactured by Messrs. Hartupee & Co., as patented by the senior member of that firm. As the improvements claimed by Mr. Hartupee are of permanent public importance and particularly valuable to the steam boat interests, we took occasion to be present at the trial trip of their second boat the "Quickstep," in order that we might make a statement of its merits from actual observation.

The objects sought to be accomplished are mainly two. First, to lessen the risk of steamboat traveling, by using steam of a much lower pressure than ordinarily used. Second, to produce better results with much less boilers, effecting a corresponding saving in fuel and increasing the carrying capacity of the vessel.

Believing this engine a decided success, we purpose to narrate some of the difficulties Mr. H. has overcome that have hitherto been considered unsurmountable.

Condensing engines, of necessity, are compelled to use steam at a low temperature, say from one and a half to three atmosphere, in order that the effect of the vacuum produced may not be neutralized by the force that would be required to relieve the condensor, were the steam to be used at a temperature of say ten atmospheres, with condensor, air pumps, etc., made proportionately large. Using steam, then, at a low pressure, for the purpose of obtaining great power, implies the necessity of using cylinders of great area. In other words, what is lost in pressure in the boiler, has to be made up by increased area of cylinder, plus the effective force of the vacuum used. Hence such engines have large boilers and ponderous heavy machinery, requiring staunchly built vessels of great draught of water.

Western waters require boats of a character entirely different, which, for the purpose of lightness, are built frail and on a much cheaper principle.

The lightest possible class of high pressure machinery is used, from which to obtain a requisite amount of power, requires great consumption of fuel and a fearful pressure of steam.

The Hartupee Duplex Engine is a combination of the high and low pressure.

A medium pressure of steam is used in a small [illegible]

—Governments and Railways are active and higher, especially railway stocks, which appear to be in demand for investment.

—Mining stocks are dull, but steady, at about yesterday's quotations.

—The Stock Exchange was much excited in the railway list, and the speculation was more widely distributed over the New York and Western roads than last week, when Erie common shares were the prominent attraction. This stock has not ceased to attract a large interest, both on the bull and bear side. The annual election of yesterday, so far from ending the present speculation in the stock, has introduced new elements to confound or confuse the street, not the least remarkable of which is the sudden alliance in the new Board of Direction of two such well known Wall street manipulators as Mr. Drew and Mr. Lane. The stock was active to-day and in the main quite firm, advancing to 84½ per cent. The half yearly dividend of eight per cent. on the Cleveland and Toledo shares, although announced several days ago, attracted vigorous buying to-day at an advance of 2@2½ per cent. The recent dividends of the Fort Wayne and Rock Island Companies have also made these Stocks peculiar favorites with some of the heaviest operators of the Stock Exchange, and the party now in Fort Wayne talk of carrying it up to 115@120 ex-dividend. The same party, we believe, are buying into Illinois Central; at least both Stocks are going into the same house on Wall street quite freely. The buying in Rock Island is ... more generally distributed ... remark applies to New ... has been comparatively ... past, although the cash ... of 5 per cent. is drawing ... of an extra scrip Dividend ... of the Sinking Fund.
